

What is a site specific floodplain exemption?

A site specific floodplain exemption allows the RDEK to vary the floodplain requirements of a zoning, land use or floodplain management bylaw for zoned areas and the Board policy pertaining to floodplain requirements in unzoned areas. Application may be made to vary either the required setback from or elevation above a watercourse or body of water. The level of flood protection may not be altered and alternative options should be considered prior to application. A Professional Engineer's Report / Flood Hazard Assessment Report certifying that the land may be used safely for the intended purpose must be submitted as part of the application package. A restrictive covenant under Section 219 of the Land Title Act will be required as a condition of approval if your exemption is granted.

Points to consider:

- A decision to approve a site specific exemption is at the discretion of the RDEK Board.
- The Board must be satisfied that an exemption to the bylaw or policy is justified.
- Approval is based on the site specific conditions and supporting professional documentation.
- All expenses related to the Professional Engineer's Report / Flood Hazard Assessment Report and the preparation of the restrictive covenant are the responsibility of the applicant.

How and where to apply:

Complete a site specific floodplain exemption application. These are available from the RDEK offices at:

- 19 - 24th Avenue South, Cranbrook, BC

5. A Professional Engineer's Report / Floodplain Hazard Assessment Report certifying that the land may be used safely for the intended purpose. What happens to your application?

Your application and supporting documentation will be reviewed to ensure that it meets the requirements of other RDEK bylaws, plans and policies. Staff will then prepare a report with recommendations for consideration by the RDEK Board.

If the Board needs more information, or if there are major concerns with your requested exemption, your application may be approved with modifications, deferred or turned down. If your application is approved, the following steps will take place:

1. A letter will be mailed advising you of any conditions of approval, such as the preparation and registration of the restrictive covenant. A draft of the restrictive covenant is to be provided to RDEK staff for review and for the appropriate signatures upon confirmation that the covenant is acceptable.
2. The restrictive covenant will be registered on the title(s) of the property by the applicant.
3. Upon confirmation of registration of the covenant on title and completion of any additional conditions of approval you will be eligible to apply for the required building permits.

If the application is turned down:

If your application is turned down, you may reapply to the RDEK for the same proposal after six months has passed. You may apply for a different proposal at any time if the Board has turned down your application. You may also make a request for reconsideration of the application provided the request is based on new information, is accompanied by the appropriate fee and application form, and is received in writing no more than 30 days after the date of decision.
